Anti-Harassment and Bullying in the Workplace

Thursday 14 November 2013

IS THIS AN EPIDEMIC?

When WorkSafe Queensland reviewed the bullying complaints it handled during 2010-11, it found that they had more than quadrupled since 2008.

Workplaces are now flooded with so many bullying claims that employers often feel paralysed about how to deal with them.

HOW CAN ORGANISATIONS SAFEGUARD AGAINST LITIGATION?

TP Human Capital invites you to a unique and entertaining presentation that offers a host of real insights and strategies for your own organisation.

Using scenarios based on actual contemporary workplace research this session will give attendees:

- ▶ An understanding of what workplace harassment and bullying really is, and how it differs from legitimate performance management.
- ▶ Insights into the liabilities, responsibilities and implications of the legislation for both the employer and employee.
- ▶ Factors which can contribute to higher risk of workplace bullying and harassment.
- ▶ A range of strategies to better foster a safe and productive work environment.
